Biography

Charles "Chuck" Stableford studied Fine Art (in addition to Philosophy and Mathematics) at Hampshire College and was lucky to have Joan Wadleigh Curran, George Harris and Roy Superior for teachers. While they're collective fundamentals were essential, Chuck credits his son Winter with "reinvigorating a career that had stalled thirty-two years earlier" when he developed a hybrid mixed style approach as a way to coax his son beyond drawing stick figures.

Stableford has spent the last five years developing a body of work using this evolving hybrid mixed media method. When he is not producing work, he participates in art shows, hosting open studio events, while continuously "Tweeting and blogging about my latest creations."
